Priest With Prayer on His Lips Bravely Forms the Cross As Mexican Bullets Crucify Him

"FATHER THEY KNOW NOT"
Rev. Miguel Pro, the priest executed in Mexico City with his brother and two others shown in civilian clothes in prayer before the firing squad killed him.

BODY FORMS CROSS AGAINST BLOOD-SNEARED WALL
Father Projearez, with his arms outstretched until his body formed a human cross, met his death at the hands of his executioners, a silent supplication upon his lips that his death may shame his beheaded land. Note the thousands of bullet holes which pockmark the wall and the effigies there where many men have been put to death.

THE "COUP DE GRACE" IN MEXICO
A police sergeant, a member of the firing squad, makes the death of Father Projearez doubly sure by sending a final bullet into the fallen body of the executed priest, who died bravely with three other men, one of whom was his brother, for an alleged plot on Obregón's life.

SECRET CALLES-SACASA NICARAGUAN TREATY REVEALED

Publication of this secret treaty by the Hearst papers provokes the present military intervention by the United States in Nicaragua to have been unavoidable if the interests of the American people were to be protected.

All of the various measures taken by President Calles in the promotion of the Liberal rebellion in Nicaragua are justifiable in the light of this remarkable treaty. The text of this treaty has been sought by agents of the American and Nicaraguan governments for more than a year.

This sensational document reveals how completely Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, Calles' liberal claimant to the Nicaraguan Presidency, was willing to sell his country into the hands of Mexico and an unnamed third power. His reward was to be the privilege of acting as figurehead President of Nicaragua, subject always to the order of his Mexican boss, Plutarco Elías Calles.

Dr. Sacasa pledged himself, in Article V of this secret treaty, to call a special session of the Nicaraguan Congress to "revise and amend" the treaties negotiated between the United States and Nicaragua in 1916, selling to the American government the right to dig a transcontinental canal through Nicaraguan territory and establish a naval base in Fonseca Bay, on the Pacific coast of Nicaragua.

Article IV of this "secret and provisional" treaty stipulates that Dr. Sacasa, upon occupying the presidency of his country, should call the Nicaraguan National Congress into session for the purpose of granting to Mexico the right to colonize the Districts of San Juan del Norte and Chinandega, either with Mexican colonists or those of "another" nationality. That other nationality will be specified later on.

Americans will quickly recognize the vital threat to the United States in Article IV. The District of San Juan del Norte is at the eastern end of the proposed transcontinental canal route. San Juan del Sur would take in the canal's Pacific terminal, and the coast of Chinandega is washed by the waters of Fonseca Bay. In this bay the United States has the right, obtained by treaty, to establish a naval base for the protection of the canal which is so vitally necessary for the protection of requirements and military safety of our country.

In return for these concessions, aimed directly against the United States, the Mexican government pledged itself in the secret treaty to extend every moral and material aid to Dr. Sacasa, "to the end that he may recover the executive power" in Nicaragua.

The treaty pledged Mexico to make every effort to induce the governments of Central and South America to break their diplomatic and commercial relations with the Nicaraguan government and invite their "sympathy and friendship" for Sacasa. Mexico also was pledged to contribute all funds necessary for "the organization of military expeditions to go to fight on Nicaraguan territory," and to furnish "arms, munitions and transportation mediums." These pledges were faithfully fulfilled.

President Calles further engaged to loan $5,000,000 to the Sacasa government immediately upon its installation in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital. It never became necessary to fulfill that engagement.

The text of the treaty follows:

To the Citizen President of the Chamber of Deputies.

You will please take note of the following provisional secret treaty, agreed upon between the Citizen Constitutional President of the Mexican Republic and the Citizen Constitutional Substitute President of Nicaragua, Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, in order that the said treaty may be presented by that High Chamber to the National Congress for its study and ratification.

PROVISIONAL SECRET TREATY

WHEREAS The Government of Mexico, taking into consideration the imminent peril which menaces the peace and stability of Latin America through the continued exercise of the Executive Power of the Sister Republic of Nicaragua of the Comandante Emiliano Chamorro, who possessed himself of the public power by means of a military revolt, deposing from their posts the Citizens' President and Vice President of the Republic, obliging the first to renounce his constitutional rights and expelling the second from the country, though by administration of the law he should, after the forced resignation of the President, have assumed the executive power of the Nation; and

WHEREAS The Government of Mexico, considering that the Constitutional Government of Nicaragua should be re-established in the executive power of the said country, in order that it act as a precedent for morality among the other Sister Republics of Central America and in this manner fortify the treaty which was signed between them by their representatives in Washington in 1922;

THEREFORE, in accordance with the foregoing, the Citizen President of the Republic and the Citizen Constitutional Substitute President of Nicaragua drew up the following agreement, which will be given the form of a provisional and secret treaty, until the Constitutional Government shall have been re-established in Nicaragua.

The map of Nicaragua above shows the route of the proposed American canal on which President Calles had designs. He planned to establish colonies of Mexicans in this territory.

Article I.

The Government of Mexico, through the medium of this secret provisional treaty, pledges itself solemnly to extend every moral and material aid to the Citizen Constitutional President of Nicaragua, Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, to the end that he may recover the executive power of his government in the Sister Republic of Nicaragua.

As to moral aid: The Government of Mexico will make every effort possible through diplomatic channels to induce the other Sister Republics of Central and South America to break their diplomatic and commercial relations with the usurper's government of Emiliano Chamorro, at the same time inviting sympathy and friendship for the Constitutional Government headed by Juan B. Sacasa.

As to material aid: The Government of Mexico will contribute all the funds necessary for the organization of military expeditions which will go to fight on Nicaraguan territory, and will furnish the arms, munitions and transportation mediums which may be required to facilitate military operations in that country.

Article II.

The Government of Mexico will extend every facility and give pecuniary aid to the agents and representatives of the Nicaraguan Liberal Red Party (Partido Liberal Rojo Nicaragüense) in the establishment of propaganda and recruiting offices in all places in the Mexican Republic which may be deemed advantageous for such purposes, supplying to the said agents or representatives officers of the Mexican Army, in order that they may organize and discipline the expeditionary forces, which they will attach themselves until these forces are aboard the ships which are to conduct the expeditions to Nicaraguan territory.

Article III.

The Government of Mexico will supply the Constitutional Government of Nicaragua, through the medium of the Mexican Navigation Company (Compañía Mexicana de Navegación) with the ships necessary for the transportation of expeditions or war material required to conduct the campaign on Nicaraguan territory. The Government of Mexico will take care of the expenses incurred, both as to ship's personnel and fuel.

Today's Disclosures

THE Boston Evening American and associated Hearst newspapers present today the draft of a secret treaty drawn up by President Calles of Mexico and Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, rebel leader in Nicaragua. Under the terms of this agreement the following concessions were to be made by Mexico and the Nicaraguan Liberals:

President Calles was to recognize the Sacasa government. He was also to furnish money, munitions and men to help the Liberals put the American-recognized President out of office.

In return Dr. Sacasa agreed to abrogate a treaty made by Nicaragua with the United States for an ocean to ocean canal. Mexico was to have the privilege of colonizing this ceded territory with men from Mexico or men from another world power.

Article IV.

The Constitutional Substitute President, Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, pledges himself solemnly by this secret provisional treaty, upon occupying the Presidency of the Republic of Nicaragua, to convene the National Congress and request that it extend to the Republic of Mexico the right to colonize the districts of San Juan del Norte, San Juan del Sur and Chinandega, either with Mexican colonists or with those of another nationality; these to be subject to the laws and immigration regulations in effect between the two countries.

(Editor's Note: The districts of San Juan del Norte and San Juan del Sur command both terminals of the proposed canal route. In the opinion of Dr. Manuel Zavala, Charge d'Affaires of the Nicaraguan Legation in Washington, this article could be interpreted so as to permit the colonization of the entire proposed canal route with Mexicans or colonists of another nationality designated by Mexico. The position of the District of Chinandega in relation to Fonseca Bay may be noted. It is in Fonseca Bay the United States proposes to establish its naval base for the protection of the Nicaraguan canal.)

Article V.

The Constitutional Substitute President of Nicaragua, Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, pledges himself solemnly by this treaty, that during the first year of his administration of the public power in Nicaragua, he will convene a Constitutional Congress, for the purpose of studying, with great care, all the treaties onerous and humiliating for the country, signed by the Usurper Emiliano Chamorro, to the end that those which may be considered a menace to the sovereignty and national integrity, and prejudicial to Latin-American hegemony, may be revised and annulled, if this should be of advantage to the national interests of the country.

(Editor's Note: The treaties which the Mexican Government pledged Dr. Sacasa to procure the annulment of were the so-called Bryan-Chamorro Treaties, entered into between the United States and Nicaragua in 1916, giving the United States the right, in consideration of a payment of $2,000,000, to build a transcontinental canal through Nicaraguan territory and establish a naval base for its protection at Fonseca Bay. While Calles and Sacasa professed to consider these treaties a "menace to the sovereignty and national integrity" of Nicaragua, and "prejudicial to Latin-American hegemony," Calles in reality foresaw that if they should be carried into effect his dream of a Central American and Caribbean Federation, headed by Mexico and supported by one of the great world powers, never could be realized.)

Article VI.

The Government of Mexico pledges itself by this treaty to extend its diplomatic recognition to the Constitutional Government of Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, Substitute President of Nicaragua, immediately upon the establishment of his Government in any place in Nicaragua, aiding financially in whatever expenses may be incurred in the installation of the said government. These expenditures shall be added to sums loaned previously, making a total which shall be recognized by the Constitutional Government and paid as is set forth in the article which follows.

Article VII.

The Government of Mexico shall make a loan of ten million pesos national gold ($5,000,000, approximately) to the Constitutional Government of Nicaragua when it shall be definitely installed in power in the capital of the Republic, subtracting from this sum the amounts supplied as provisional loans to agents and representatives of the said Government during the period of campaign and organization. This total loan shall be released by a bond issue based on the railroads of the country, for a period of ten years, the bonds to be approved by the National Congress.

Transitory

The Constitutional Presidents of Mexico and Nicaragua by common consent sign this treaty, pledging themselves to fulfill the obligations indicated for each of them; the treaty is of provisional character, in order that the Congresses of both countries may study and ratify it, thus giving it due force and effect.

Mexico, D. F., July 15, 1926.

Signed in the National Palace:

Aaron Sanchez, P. Elias Calles, Secretary of Foreign Relations. The President of the Republic, Juan Bautista Sacasa, Constitutional Substitute President of Nicaragua.

Dr. Pedro Jose Zavala, Representative of the Nicaraguan Liberal Red Party.

The Liberal movement, backed by Mexico, must have succeeded in Nicaragua but for the vigilance of our State Department and its representatives in Mexico and Nicaragua.

The movement had not gone far before the State Department had well-defined suspicions of its real significance. But before these suspicions had ripened into conviction the entire Atlantic coast of Nicaragua was in the hands of the rebel expeditionary forces, retrained and equipped in Mexico, had been taken to Nicaragua in Mexican ships, where they were reinforced by native volunteers. These well-armed forces had won several skirmishes and the decisive battle of Pearl Lagoon from the poorly equipped Nicaraguan Government troops.

Once the State Department was sufficiently convinced of the origin and aims of the Liberal revolt it acted swiftly and efficiently to prevent its triumph. Publication of these documents at that time might have prevented the misinterpretation of our motives which has arisen in some Latin American countries.

It is regrettable that the documentary evidence now being published by the Hearst papers was not available to our government at the time of its intervention. Publication of these documents at that time might have prevented the misinterpretation of our motives which has arisen in some Latin American countries.

The next article of this series will be of an extremely sensational nature. The draft of a secret treaty between Mexico and a world power will be published.

BLIND MOTHER IS AWAITING FORBES

Plymouth, Nov. 23.—Charles Forbes is coming home to his mother.

Charles R. Forbes, who for two years that ended at midnight Friday, was a number in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas.

In a weather-stained, shingled cottage in Sandwick street, beneath the bow of the hill upon which is the Jordan Hospital, Charles Forbes' mother is waiting. Waiting as she has waited the past two years—alone. Standfast, as she has been standfast through the span of 90 years since her birth, in her faith in man and mankind. Standfast in her faith in Charles.

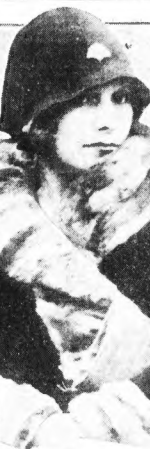

SHE IS BLIND.

Tonight, perhaps, or tomorrow on the next day—she is on route with a short stop-over in Washington—Charles Forbes will come down the road to home and one woman who never will believe he wasted millions of government dollars in his administration of Veterans' Bureau affairs will hold his bowed head against her shoulder.

She will not see him. For fear? There will be tears, perhaps. But she will not see him because she is blind.

The two years that Charles Forbes has been "away" have been for his mother a period of increasing shadow. The slight of her right eye to entirely blind. Her left vision. Please Turn to Page 26, Column 1.

2 BODIES FOUND IN WRECKED ROOM

Leavenworth, Nov. 23.—In the torn-up room and with the head of the younger man covered with blood, the bodies of Richard McNulty, 34, and his son John, 24, were found today at No. 20 Methuen street.

Father and son had not been seen by the maid or any of the other lodgers in the rooming house since Friday night.

Today the maid became worried over her inability to get into the room, which was locked from the inside.

She knocked her fears to James Kennedy, a lodger, and he suggested forcing the door. This was done and the two bodies were found on the floor, within three feet of each other.

The pair had been ripped almost off the floor, the bed was torn open, furniture was broken and upset and the room, generally, was a wreck.

Police were notified and Medical Examiner Victor Reed was summoned.

The McNulty father and son had lived in the same room for fifteen years, according to other lodgers. On Friday night the son was seen on the street and the father was seen in his room.

REMUS DEFENSE ON 'UNWRITTEN LAW' BARRED

By JAMES L. KILGALLIN.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 23.—A bitter legal debate resulting in victory for the prosecution occurred today at the trial of George Remus for the murder of his wife, Lucretia, when Franklin Edward Shaw of Washington, D. C., a race track timer, took the witness stand to give the first "unwritten law" testimony.

Shaw claims to know certain facts concerning Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge Jr., of Lansing, Mich., defense attorney Charles H. Egan had hardly begun a question when Prosecutor Charles F. Tait objected.

The jury was excluded while the argument went on.

"It is not proper to get into this until they have presented testimony showing conclusively that Remus had a diseased mind," declared Tait. "This is simply a subterfuge to get testimony before the jury along the line of the unwritten law, which is not a legal defense in this state."

"We are merely trying to show the circumstances which drove Remus to temporary insanity," declared Tait.

"You must, Mr. Egan, show independent testimony of a diseased mind before you can go into these things which you claim caused the insanity," Tait then was withdrawn as a defense witness.

Franklin L. Dodge Jr., appeared unexpectedly at the courthouse today and was served with a detainer subpoena, calling upon him to surrender property that Remus claims to be his. Remus alleges that Dodge and Mrs. Remus were living in his home in their possession.

Vernon R. Chumley, a defense witness, was indicted today for perjury in a deposition in the Remus case in which he alleged he witnessed misconduct of Mrs. Remus in the home of Dodge. Chumley served time for impersonating a Federal officer, has been acting as private secretary for Remus in prison.

MRS. SNYDER SHOULD DIE, WOMEN SAY

The women say. That does she? And should she?

Just a few days more than a month from now in a little New York town on the east bank of the Hudson River the final curtain is due to drop on the last act of one of America's most exciting murder cases.

There is nothing, slightly more difficult in execution than Ring Sing, during the week of January 3, Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray are sentenced to die in the electric chair.

If you were Governor of New York, what would you do? Would you let Ruth Snyder go to the chair? Would you pardon her for that child's sake? Would you commute her sentence to life imprisonment? Would you not differently in Ruth's case than you would in Gray's?

And why would you do either one of these things?

Representative women answered these questions in startling unanimity. Not one would pardon Ruth. Pardon. Only one would allow her mercy.

MRS. TUTTIN CALLED. If I were Governor of New York, I would neither pardon Mrs. Snyder nor commute her sentence. Like most women I have followed the case very closely. The courts have decided Ruth Snyder guilty of the murder of her husband and the sentence of the court should be carried out. Any woman who feels there should be no special provision granted women merely because she is a woman. What is justice? Justice is the law.

KATHIE BISHWANGER, a secretary of Medford. If I were Governor I would commute both to life imprisonment. The woman was equally as bad as the man and there should not differentiate between them. But I would show Pardon. Turn to Page 26, Column 5.

STATE FINANCE BOARD IN HUMAN SAYS GOODBYE

Charging that the State commission on administration and finance is debauched, inefficient and parasitic, Frank A. Goodwin today resigned his post as chairman of the board.

Two rulings by the commission based on the recent increase in salaries of State employees were the particular target for the register's wrath, with the installation of each register in his department a close second.

"When the increases went into effect," said Mr. Goodwin, "they were retroactive to June 1. Before they went into effect, however, hundreds of civil had left the State service and obtained other positions."

DEMANDS PAY FOR GIRLS. "These girls should be entitled to the increases from June 1 until the date they severed their connections with the State department."

"The debauched Commission on Administration and Finance has now ruled that no one is entitled to the increase, however, unless he or she is still in the State service."

"Another plausible decision has to do with absence from work due to sickness or other cause. In addition to being regular pay, the employee will hereafter also lose a proportionate amount of the (increase) which covers a period of some 150 days. This means a saving of a few cents to the State, and in line with other parsimonious rulings by the commission."

PROTESTS REGISTER. "Their inefficiency is displayed by the installation of each register in his department where there is already a deficiency, and probably in other departments. At the installation of Comptroller McConville the commission has installed four cash registers in my department."

"They have a stack of several thousands of dollars for the purchase of other cash registers, and I have attempted to have part of this fund transferred to make up the deficiency. The cash registers are costly and are causing considerable confusion, and at present should not be installed at this time."

GIRL ABANDONS BABY IN HOTEL

Brookline, Nov. 25.—Brookline authorities are seeking a young woman, about twenty-four years old, who registered as Mrs. Richard Brown of Manchester, N. H., at the Hotel Norfolk Saturday and who disappeared Sunday leaving behind her in her room a three-week-old baby boy.

While hotel employees believed the woman was still in her room, to which she also had stayed rather close, there came a telephone call from the outside and a woman's voice said it was Mrs. Brown, that she had fallen and been injured and would not return and that her three-week-old baby was in the room. The infant was taken to Brookline Hospital where it will be held until its mother is found or, if not, be turned over to the State. The mother is described as a blonde, good looking and clad in a lavender coat and tan shoes. The woman was very well-dressed and appeared to be refined.

THE NEW FORD CAR

An announcement of unusual importance to every automobile owner

NINETEEN years ago we made and sold the first Model T Ford car. In announcing it to the public we said:

"We will build a motor car for the great multitude. It will be large enough for the family, but small enough for the individual to run and care for. It will be constructed of the best materials, by the best men to be hired, after the simplest designs modern engineering can devise. But it will be so low in price that no man making a good salary will be unable to own one."

"If I were starting in business today, or asked to restate my policy, I would not change one sentence or one word of that original announcement. In plain, simple language it gives the reason for the very existence of the Ford Motor Company and explains its growth.

IN THE last nineteen years we have made 15,000,000 Ford cars and added to the world nearly 300,000,000 mobile horse-power. Yet I do not consider the machines which bear my name simply as machines. I take them as concrete evidence of the working out of a theory of business which I hope is something more than a theory of business—a theory that looks toward making this world a better place in which to live.

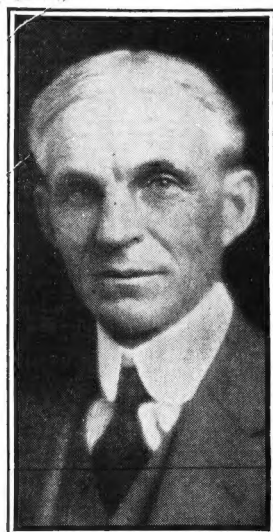

The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. There was no conscious public need of motor cars when we first conceived it. There were few good roads and only the adventurous few could be induced to buy an automobile.

The Ford car blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads. It broke down the barriers of time and distance and helped to place education within the reach of all. It gave people more leisure. It helped people everywhere to do more and better work in less time and enjoy doing it. It did a great deal, I am sure, to promote the growth and progress of this country.

We are still proud of the record of the Model T Ford car. If we were not, we would not have continued to manufacture it so long. But 1927 is not 1908. It is not 1915. It is not even 1926.

We have built a new car to meet modern conditions

"We realize that conditions in this country have so greatly changed in the last few years that further refinement in motor car construction is desirable. So we have built a new car. To put it simply—we have built a new

by
HENRY FORD

"The new Ford has unusual speed for a low-price car because present-day conditions require unusual speed.

"The world moves more quickly than it used to. There are only so many hours in the day and there is much to be done.

"Fifty and sixty miles an hour are desired today where thirty and forty would have satisfied in 1908. So we are giving you this new speed.

Quiet and smooth-running at all speeds

"The new Ford will ride comfortably at fifty and sixty miles an hour. It has actually done sixty-five miles an hour in road tests.

"Since modern conditions demand more speed, they also demand better brakes to balance this speed. So we are giving you four-wheel brakes in the new Ford.

"The new Ford will be quiet and smooth-running at all speeds and you will find it even easier to handle in traffic than the old Model T Ford.

"The new Ford has durability because durability is the very heart of motor car value. The Ford car has always been known as a car that will take you there and bring you back. The new Ford will not only do that, but it will do it in good style. You will be proud of the new Ford.

"THIS new Ford car has not been planned and made in a day. Our engineers began work on it several years ago and it has been in my mind much longer than that. We make automobiles quickly when we get in production. But we take a long time planning them. Nothing can hurry us in that. We spent twelve years in perfecting our former Model T Ford car before we offered it to the public. It is not conceivable that we should have put this new Ford car on the market until we were sure that it was mechanically correct in every detail.

"Every part of it has been tested and re-tested. There is no guessing as to whether it will be a successful model. It has to be. There is no way it can escape being so, for it represents the sum total of all we have learned about motor car building in the making of 15,000,000 automobiles.

The new Ford will sell at a low price

"The price of the new Ford is low in accordance with the established Ford policy. I hold that it is better to sell a large number of cars at a reasonably small margin of profit than to sell a few cars at a large margin of profit.

"We never forget that people who buy Ford cars are the people who helped to make this business big. It has always been our policy to share our profits with our customers. In one year our profits were so much larger than we expected that we voluntarily returned $50 to each purchaser of a car. We could never have done that if this business had been conducted for the sole benefit of stockholders rather than to render service to the public.

"No other automobile can duplicate the new Ford car at the Ford price because no other manufacturer does business the way we do.

"We make our own steel—we make our own glass—we mine our own coal—we make virtually every part used in the Ford car. But we do not charge a profit on any of these items or from these operations. We would not be playing fair with the public if we did so. Our only business is the automobile business. Our only profit is on the automobile we sell.

"WE ARE able to sell this new Ford car at a low price because we have found new ways to give you greater value without a great increase in our own costs.

"We did not set out to make a new car to sell at such-and-such a figure. We decided on the kind of car we wanted to make and then found ways to produce it at a low price.

"The new Ford car, as I have said, will be officially announced on Friday of this week. In appearance, in performance, in comfort, in safety, in all that goes to make a good car, it will bear out everything I have said here. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

and different Ford to meet new and different conditions.

"We believe the new Ford car, which will be officially announced on Friday of this week, is as great an improvement in motor car building as the Model T Ford was in 1908.

Smart new low lines and beautiful colors

"The new Ford is more than a car for the requirements of today. It goes farther than that. It anticipates the needs of 1928, of 1929, of 1930.

"The new Ford car is radically different from Model T. Yet the basic Ford principles of economy of production and quality of product have been retained. There is nothing quite like the new Ford anywhere in quality and price.

"The new Ford has exceptional beauty of line and color because beauty of line and color has come to be considered, and I think rightly, a necessity in a motor car today. Equally important is the mechanical beauty of the engine. Let us not forget this mechanical beauty when we consider the beauty of the new Ford.

WHEN EVERYWOMAN seeks unusually good fiction; when Everywoman wants wise counsel on civic or social problems; when Everywoman entertains; when Everywoman buys a frock or decorates a home; when Everywoman furnishes a nursery or chooses a school, she turns to GOOD HOUSEKEEPING. She knows it is not only a source of rich entertainment and a mold of taste, but also the last word of authority on all that enters into family life.

For more than four decades GOOD HOUSEKEEPING has been a crusader for higher standards in manufacture and Everywoman, by long and satisfactory experience, has learned to regard it as an authentic buying guide. What one woman writes is a composite of what Everywoman could write:

"GOOD HOUSEKEEPING is my final court of decision—its contents and its advertisements."

Thus when Everywoman buys baby powders, dentifrices, food products, toilet articles—she knows that she dare not take chances on inferior goods, and she assures herself of safety by purchasing goods guaranteed by the GOOD HOUSEKEEPING Bureau of Foods, Sanitation and Health.

When she wants to equip her home—when she selects an iron, a washing-machine, a range, a vacuum cleaner or a refrigerator, she looks to see if GOOD HOUSEKEEPING Institute has approved it.

When she decorates her rooms she sees to it that the arrangement and also the furniture and fabrics have the endorsement of GOOD HOUSEKEEPING Studio; when she buys clothes she makes sure that GOOD HOUSEKEEPING'S Fashion Department endorses them for faithfulness to the mode and for wearing quality.

In other words, EVERYWOMAN knows that GOOD HOUSEKEEPING'S guarantee behind advertised goods means PROTECTION IN BUYING. This confidence in GOOD HOUSEKEEPING is daily in evidence to manufacturers, who find its 1,500,000 influential readers putting their faith into practice as they purchase products advertised in its pages.

When this seal is on a food product, or a piece of household equipment, it shows the buyer up to a definite standard of excellence. Hundreds of manufacturers use this seal of approval as Institute, or by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING an additional guarantee of merit.

Relief From Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 70 per cent. of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are sure to get indigestion, heartburn, gas, dizziness, and keep your bowels regular. Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles of every kind, even those of many years' standing. Read what Mr. William H. Champagne, of 341 Pleasant St., Worcester, says: "I was bilious and had no appetite after eating Tanlac. I can now eat anything without the slightest trouble. After several years of suffering I am now a healthy man."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver, and are nervous and all run down, it is a sign you need Tanlac. It is a gas, pain medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks—nature's own remedy. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

The dafted girl who tells smoking-car stories between the puffs of her after-dinner cigarette is here to stay, according to this author.

All of which merely shows what women have "put over" on the men.

Women can put ANYTHING over on men!

The man who once threatened to divorce his wife if she looked married, but who now calmly discusses which sort of bob he likes best on the dear girl.

The man who used to look daggers across the room at his wife if she showed three inches of her ankle, now meekly requests her not to wear her skirts more than an inch above her knee.

The man who would not walk on the street with a "painted" woman now plaintively begs his wife to "get the make-up on even!" and holds her vanity case while she repairs her complexion.

The man who raved when his wife first had her eyebrows plucked now boasts that she looks like a "fapper" since she had her face lifted.

It is unfortunate that our government has issued no pamphlet on this subject. However, I have found that you can often win on a lull and trip a waiter. When he is down, sit on his chest, until he promises to bring you more butter. Of course, I always carry flares or some my shirt, and wave it frantically. But you can't always depend upon this to attract a waiter.

Two Great Powers--- Fear and Hope

A Stag's 32-Foot Jump

THE LINE AND ARROW SHOW A 32-FOOT JUMP MADE BY A FRIGHTENED DEER

Three mainstays are in us at birth and govern us through life. They are:
Love of life.
Love of children.
Love of success, or ambition.
FEAR expresses love of life, the dread of losing it.
HOPE expresses love of life, the intensity of joy in living it.

Great power is in hope. It took Columbus across the ocean going west, and Lindbergh across the ocean going east.
Fear holds criminals in check, dangling the noose or pointing to the electric chair. FEAR plays a great part in many religions, making those good that would be bad, through dread of hell and what they believe will happen to them.
HOPE is a power GREATER than fear, for under the influence of hope the mind works clearly, under the influence of fear it is poisoned.

Under the influence of hope we work to ATTAIN something. Under the influence of fear we strive only to AVOID something.

Hope of what is to come hereafter enables millions patiently to endure lives of sorrow, hardship and dull labor here on earth.

Hope of immortality and love of country take the soldier to the cannon's mouth.
And that "hope that springs eternal in the human breast" makes life bearable for millions that without it would be miserably unhappy.

Fear also has a great stimulating power, and this picture illustrates it.

It shows a leap made by a stag pursued by baying hounds.
The distance covered by the animal as he jumped is thirty-two feet. At the far side of the jump there was a drop of twelve feet to the ground. The stag landed successfully, not losing his footing, and rushed on—to safety, let us hope; free from the teeth of the pursuing dogs.

Englishmen, full grown, dressed in their scarlet coats, pursue a frightened animal, dogs terrify it, and those men are actually proud of themselves.

A day will come, in our civilization, when a man terrifying defenceless creatures because he finds pleasure in their suffering will be classed not far above the cannibal eating his next-door neighbor.

A Venture in Apples

Report of the Successful Use of Western Methods in New Hampshire

Fourteen years ago, Walter B. Farmer's uncle, a leading apple grower of the Northwest urged the younger man to take up the same industry in the East.

Farmer found the place he wanted in a 210-acre farm at Hampton Falls, in New Hampshire's fruit belt. His 16,000 trees are planted 35 feet apart, although leading horticulturalists are said to have advised against such close proximity. Some of the trees are in clay, too, a soil which has been called "absolutely unsuitable."

Young Mr. Farmer has just harvested a crop of 35,000 bushels. Two years hence, the young trees coming forward, he looks for a crop three times as large.

For several years now, the experts have been advising New England apple growers to adopt Western methods. Farmer brought them with him.

On Applecrest Farm, running along both sides of the Exeter road for more than a mile, experts pick from bags fastened around their waists, from which the fruit is dropped into boxes.

Care is taken that the spur is not damaged, because this produces the next year's fruit, and that fingers do not press too hard upon the skin of the apple and remove the wax.

From a traveling belt the fruit is sorted, graded and packed ready for shipment to Boston or New York.

New Hampshire has been making the claim that the southern and central part of the State is a "natural" fruit growing section. In at least five counties the industry is prosperous and growing.

It is not always blossom time nor is it always harvest. The fruit grower who would show a profit must prune, fertilize, thin and spray, as well as standardize, advertise and merchandise.

In New Hampshire, good fruit growing land is reasonably cheap, production costs are as low as they are anywhere, transportation facilities are adequate and the fruit belt is within 300 miles of 10,000,000 consumers.

Who Is Boston's Best All-Around Date? -- By Franklin Collier

OTHER PRIZES THAN BEAUTY TROPHIES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ONE prize beauty is suing her husband for divorce. It seems that having a husband interfered with her getting the prize.

This is about the sort of crop we can expect from a prize-beauty movement. Why a prize beauty, anyhow? If you are beautiful you are beautiful and that is no fault of yours. God gave you the charm and why should you boast of it as something in which you had a part yourself?

Much of the good work in this world is done by the homely girls. Homely girls make the best wives. Many a man in selecting a mate steers shy of a beauty because he does not care to have so much competition.

Why not have a competition over something that amounts to something? Over the rapidist typist, the most successful business woman, the best housekeeper, the woman who has the most healthy children or something like that.

A prize might also be given, suggests one correspondent, to the most afflicted person and experts be called on to testify about crippled legs or the lack of hands or blindness or deafness. This at least would call attention to a person's needs and probably bring relief.

The prize beauty business seems to be after all just an appeal to vanity. As a rule, the prize beauties do not score very heavily in this world's achievements.

A beautiful face or figure is not even the greatest allurements to a man, if that is what one had in mind. Experts say that neither Cleopatra, Anaxetia nor Ninon de L'Enclos, who were some charmers, were particularly endowed with feminine pulchritude.

The fact is that a beautiful spirit can enliven and make to shine a homely face. Besides this a beautiful spirit is easier to live in the long run than a beautiful face which comes an ugly spirit.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELS
IF SUN were ever shining across a smiling earth, it life knew no repining but only joy and mirth, it springtime flowers ever beside the brooklet played and daisies vanished never from happy hill and dale, it dream ships fair came sailing to port on every tide, if blue were never falling, would-men be satisfied? How sweetest man's secret nature, that inner self which grows to finer, taller stature through combat with its foe! For not by laughter only can gladness be attained, some hours must still be lonely before true peace is gained. Some goals must still be turning through'stress, some reaching 'as are joy gleams out, enduring in brightness as a star. The soul leaps up to greet him, the needs that well each day's strength waste still to meet them, the struggles on the way.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MRS. HEINRICH RUSSELL, wife of the famous British philosopher, thinks that "preliminary partnerships" before marriage would be a good thing. "If you ask women for the most of them would admit that they had married the first man that attracted them they would have made the biggest mistake of their lives."

Yes, that is true. But it's also true that "preliminary partnerships" would test the wisdom of your choice. The only way to know about a tummy ache is to have one. The only way to experience marriage is to get married.

Experimental work ends are going to boost you up against the grim reality of your own character. You can't buy riches on installment—nor miss the installment—nor preliminary partnerships. A. You can't have the miasa and live three days down with it and the punishment on the jinx, on preliminary partnerships. There are the things that really test the tensile strength of your marriage—or of your character. Marriage doesn't depend upon picking a Perfect Mate. It depends upon your own performance on the actual fishing line. It depends on your own patience, humor, grit, loyalty, unselfishness, good sense, courage, industry, and self control. You can't find joy by dropping around through a series of trial unions. You have to BUILD HARMONY out of the substance of your own spirit, and live a long time job.

The chief argument against most of these new marriage tests is that they are too much like marriage now of the human beings who are to enter into marriage. They're about as much related to ships actual wedding as a gumdrop has to a piece of hard tack. "But there's this fundamental business of physical attraction."

A FACE THAT DENIES SOUL BEHIND IT

By Garrett P. Serviss, Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

HAPPEN to have come into possession of a bust of Voltaire which has greatly interested me, although I have never chosen the notion of that remarkable genius for a room-mate. I find that this bust, which I have no doubt is a good likeness, starts some of my friends. Women coming suddenly into its presence clutch their throats and cry out, "Oh my!"

The general impression made seems to be one of repulsion combined with shrinking fear. "What a mocking devil!" exclaimed one of my male friends. "He seems to be sneering at all mankind as stupid fools. But HE was no fool!"

So the portrait of Voltaire perpetuates his legend as the Christian world has generally conceived of him—a mocker, a devil, an instrument of Satan. It would seem that Voltaire was unfortunate in his face, at least from the viewpoint of attracting friends and breeding confidence.

But it certainly proclaimed his intellectuality and marked him as a man not to be caught with bird-like—quick and meretricious riposte; repulsive like gleams of lightning, cruel delight in a thrust that reaches the vitals, contempt for impetuosity. One can see his sword play with Frederick the Great. No man every made words cut so sharply, none ever swung such scythes like sentences. All of these characteristics appear on the face of the bust.

And yet it seems that the face denies the soul behind it. You must not undertake to read Voltaire in his portrait. The whole of the "mind's construction" is certainly not revealed there.

Voltaire did not make war on religion, but only on theology. It was not the divine part of the church that he attacked, but the man-made part. Like science, he wanted the facts, the exact truth. Yet he was not born for science, although he championed Newton. All that he really understood of Newton's system was that it was also, gathered based on reason and observation, and not at all upon some special, unverifiable revelation.
